Provenance

Related Materials

Additional materials related to Matthew’s career are in the archives of Arizona State University, Tempe (where he received his undergraduate degree), and Indiana University Purdue University Indianapolis. See the IUPUI website: http://indiamond6.ulib.iupui.edu/NMphotos/ “This collection is a photographic documentary of scenes and places from the perspective of Neil E. Matthew, a professor of the Herron School of Art at IUPUI. He was a painter first while an undergraduate at Arizona State University. He then studied photography under Henry Holmes Smith at Indiana University. His photography, as described by its creator, is "the painter as photographic tourist." It is straight representational photography of the landscape and buildings seen during his travels.”

1 2 “Retrospective Portfolio” of photographs by Neil E. Matthew, ca. 1940 to 1995. (358 prints; 4 pages of slides). Includes resume and “Statement and Personal Photographic History” by the artist. Mounted and unmounted photographs include contact prints and enlargements of family and Indiana University subjects, and of Matthew’s paintings and prints. Also included in the portfolio are slides, Polaroid prints, panoramic color snapshots, and color snapshots from travel. Samples from the period when Matthew studied with Henry Holmes Smith, and two later sabbatical projects in Indiana (1970s) and Arizona (1980s) are included.

Album of negatives corresponding to contact prints in album described below (ca. 600 negatives). Made with a twin lens Ikoflex 1A.

“Photographic Contact Album,” album of contact prints, fall 1953 – summer 1957 (ca. 630 prints).
Photographs from 2 ¼ inch negatives made by Matthew when he was a photography student of Henry Holmes Smith at Indiana University, Bloomington, and later when he taught at South Bend. Subject matter includes class assignments, family and friends, art exhibitions, campus activities including theatrical events, local scenery, portraits of various artists and fellow students, and a few self-portraits of Matthew. Some images were made during the summers when Matthew studied with master printmaker Mauricio Lasansky (1914-?).
